Jack McGovern

Usually on a Friday night at 5pm most businesses are packing up for the day. Last Friday night I had an emergency call from Surrey Fire and Rescue. They had forced entry into one of the properties that I manage as the smoke alarms were sounding and no-one was in.

Luckily there was no fire but there was a leak in the loft. Water had got into the electrics and the smoke alarms causing them to sound. This was a blessing in disguise as it prevented so much potential damage.

Jack was a hero. Despite being about to go out for a meal, he came straight to the house to effect a temporary repair so that the tenants could stay at the house with minimal disruption. Many plumbers would have either ignored the call or refused to come out, but Jack agreed to come with no hesitation. We are very lucky to have such a dedicated professional within our chapter.

Thank you once again Jack for your quick response.
